Garden City, N. Y., May 16.—(UP)—Spring showers kept in their hangars today the three airplanes in which America's flyers intend to fly to Paris. Bad weather conditions over the Atlantic, first reported on Saturday, still exist, it was shown in special reports to the fliers furnished by the weather bureau.

Clarence D. Chamberlin and Lloyd Bertaud hoped to make several tests of their Bellanca monoplane this afternoon but the skies were threatening even after the rain ceased. Pilots of Commander Byrd's "America" also hoped to make test flights this afternoon.

Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, pilot of the Ryan monoplane "Spirit of St. Louis," went to New York and Paterson, N. J., on business after receiving the unfavorable weather data.

Chamberlin and Bertaud said they might fly over Washington late today or tomorrow in a compass calibration test. They said they would not land in the capitol if they made the flight.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 16.—The revenue cutter Daisy and the French steamer St. Pierre were searching Placentia Bay, in southern Newfoundland, today for traces of Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, missing French trans-Atlantic fliers. Careful check of reports that the lost plane, White Bird, had been heard over Newfoundland cast doubt on their authenticity, however.

The dozen reports that the drone of the White Bird's motor was heard were traced at last to two women—Mrs. Neworthy and Mrs. Fitzgerald. The women, who live three miles apart and about ten miles from Harbor Grace, heard last Monday what they believed was a motor car, an occurrence unusual enough to cause both to watch the road running by their homes. Both were puzzled when no car appeared, and as far as could be learned no motor was driven through that part of the island that day.

From the incident, apparently, grew all the embellished rumors.

A more concrete report was that the plane had been seen in a marsh in miles west of Whitbourne was exploded by investigation. A trapper named Gosse reported that from a hill he had seen a white object which he believed might be the plane. A search party set out from Whitbourne and found in the marsh a old cabin with a white roof.

NEW HERO OF THE AIR.
CHARLES LINDBERGH

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, May 16.—With the coming of the first signs of summer, New York, which last year took Gertrude Ederle to its heart, has reached out and drawn to itself a new hero—Charles Lindbergh.

He is a tall, slender, blushing youth of 25 who sailed into the city in his silver gray monoplane from San Diego, Calif., some 3,000 miles away, announcing he would fly to Paris.

Commander Richard Byrd is admired for his skill, his courage and his never-failing efficiency. Bert Acosta, Lloyd Bertaud and Clarence Chamberlin are honored for their accomplishments and their determination.

But the sheer audacity of Lindbergh, plus his boyish smile, his bashful blushes and his outstanding good looks, has placed him close to where Gertrude Ederle stood when she came back from her triumphant channel swim of a year ago.

Lindbergh, on the other hand, is only courteously interested in New York. He came to town today from Curtiss Field for the first time since he sailed into the city. Friends said it was his first visit to New York.

He lives at the Garden City Hotel at Garden City, near the flying field. Groups and even crowds wait in the lobby for a glimpse of him when he comes from an elevator to go to the flying field.

It is 75 feet from the elevator to the door. Last night on one trip over that 75 foot path Lindbergh

Manila, P. I., May 16.—(UP)—The Philippine constabulary has arrested 58 insurrectionists in connection with the uprising of Intrencherado, self-styled emperor on the island of Negros.

Intrencherado will be examined for possible insanity, it was announced. He has figured in previous revolts. The other insurrectionists will be tried on charges of sedition.

Intrencherado and his followers attempted to establish the "throne of the Negros" through a coup against sugar planters on the island.

Several were killed in the fighting.

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 16.—Opening of the state's dissolution suit against the House of David religious colony here was held up in circuit court here today pending arrival of Judge Louis Fead, of Newberry, who will hear arguments and testimony in the case.

Judge Fead was expected early in the afternoon, when a short court session was probable.

The judge will sit alone and render a verdict after hearing the state present all its evidence attempting to show the colony is a "fraud and public nuisance," and the colony and its "king" and "queen," Benjamin and Mary Purnell, have answered.

was stopped 14 times by utter strangers who wanted to speak to him.

"I want to shake your hand, Mr. Lindbergh," is the usual formula.

"Are you afraid? I think your flight is terribly daring," is a phrase of the usual comment that follows and Lindbergh's invariable answer is "I haven't the least doubt but what I'll make it."

He turns, takes a step or two, and is accosted again. He passes from group to group and finally makes the door and usually does a leap or at least a quick step for the automobile waiting for him outside. Each group causes him to blush a little more and by the time he goes through the door, this man whose daring is so amazing, is blushing a blazing red.

At the flying field another crowd, which varies from a couple of hundred in the early morning to thousands who were there yesterday afternoon, waits for Lindbergh.

He spends much of his time inside the hangar, with police holding back the crowd.

When he emerges the crowd applauds by clapping hands, and never by cheering. It acts much as a golf gallery when Bobby Jones makes a birdie.

The word has gone among the superstitious that Lindbergh is blessed with the same sort of "luck" that attaches to a four-leaf clover or a rabbit's foot. When he passes through a crowd, accordingly, here and there men and women are seen to press forward and touch his clothing or rub their hands across his back. Not even this irritates the blushing young man from the west, but police intervened once yesterday afternoon and quietly made a body guard around him.

As to the girls, he has attracted the flappers in a way comparable to Valentino. Letters are coming to him by the scores. They wish him luck, ask for his picture, give him telephone numbers, protest undying affection, and give him sage advice.

When he appears in public, girls scramble for a sight of him. But Lindbergh only blushes and smiles.

Long Island City, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray started today on the road that will take them to the electric chair, unless desperate legal maneuvers upset the sentence of death passed upon them.

The two lovers, convicted of murdering Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert, were taken from the Long Island City jail just before 10:30 A. M., and started in automobiles for Sing Sing prison at Ossining, N. Y., up the Hudson.

The unhappy lovers, Mrs. Snyder bravely assuming an air of nonchalance and defiance and Gray subdued and unhappy, did not meet. They were placed in separate automobiles, heavily guarded by motorcycle police and headed for the Queensboro bridge over the East river.

They were to pass through the center of New York and along upper Broadway through Yonkers to Ossining.

A crowd of several thousand watched as the pair were led out of the jail to the waiting automobiles and almost whisked away. All arrangements had been made to avoid delay and prevent the departure from becoming a public spectacle.

Traffic lanes had been cleared by special squads of police and the automobiles were to be given the right of way through to Ossining.

Early morning clouds had cleared away and the trip was made in the sunshine, in accordance with the wish expressed by Gfay.

The corset salesman, who has become resigned to dying, was almost pathetic in his eagerness to spend as much as possible of his few remaining days in the sunshine.

Mrs. Snyder had a cheerful air and chatted with the two matrons accompanying her, smiling at times. She was dressed in black. Her hair had been carefully dressed.

Deputy sheriffs rode in each car with the prisoners, both of whom were handcuffed.

A dozen cars swung in behind the two bearing the prisoners and the escorting motorcycles. They were mostly filled with newspapermen. One car carried several police officials.

Sing Sing Prison, N. Y., May 16.—Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray were behind the walls of Sing Sing prison today.

"What's the first thing you'll do when you land?" was another question.

"I've only got about 200 things I want to do first," he said. "So probably I'll go to sleep."

Lindbergh has refused to sign any contracts to advertise anything, endorse anything, or even to write for any publication, until he gets to Paris.

ALL NIGHT
GIN AND JAZZ
PARTIES DESCRIBED"JUNGLE," JAPANESE HOUSE-
BOY, TO TAKE STAND IN
KELLY TRIALLATTER CHARGED WITH MUR-
DER OF RAY RAYMOND,
STAGE ACTOR

By DAN CAMPBELL

Los Angeles, Calif., May 16.—All night "gin and jazz" parties in the apartment of Paul Kelly, screen juvenile, will be described by "Jungle," his Japanese houseboy, when he takes the witness stand in Kelly's trial for the murder of Ray Raymond, stage actor, according to the district attorney's office today.

"Jungle," who fled from the Kelly apartment after his master had been arrested in connection with the crime, has been held incommunicado by police. He has admitted officiating with a cocktail shaker at the prolonged liquor orgies and will reveal the intimate details of these parties from the stand, the state's attorney said.

The houseboy will be questioned about conversation between Kelly and the beautiful Dorothy Mackaye, Raymond's widow, over whom the two men are said to have fought, at a party in Kelly's apartment.

On the witness stand Friday, Miss Mackaye said the screen star had left the apartment while the party was being held and returned shortly afterward. She was unable to remember the conversation she had with him prior to his departure, she testified.

Miss Mackaye, who was on the witness stand when the case adjourned over the week-end, is expected to resume her testimony when the case is called at 2 P. M. today. She was on the verge of collapse at the close of the day but is reported to have recovered sufficiently to appear again today.

Defense attorneys indicated they would question her further about passionately phrased love letters and messages exchanged between her and Kelly while he was on the road.

New interest was injected into the case over the week-end when Ethel Lee, negro maid at the Raymond home and the only eye witness to the fight between Raymond and Kelly, is reported to have asked permission to return to the stand and "tell plenty."

She is said to have been incensed at the testimony of Miss Mackaye Friday, that the maid was drunk when the fight took place and that her testimony could be given very little credence.

Another surprising development came in the public announcement of Helen Wilkinson, companion of Miss Mackaye, that it was she and not the beautiful widow, who was in love with the screen star.

On the stand, Miss Mackaye testified that Miss Wilkinson was present at most of the "gin parties" given by Kelly.

The state is expected to spend the remainder of the week examining witnesses.

FLOOD WATERS

LANDSRESCUE BOATS OF ALL DESCRIP-

MAROONED

By E. W. LEWIS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New Orleans, La., May 16.—Preparations were made today to care for 20,000 additional refugees from the south central parishes of Louisiana as the flood waters seeped across their lands.

Levees along the Bayou Des Glaisses are slowly crumbling and a great wall of water is pouring over the fertile lands. The residents, however, have had sufficient time to prepare for evacuation and most of them are reported to be moving from the territory.

Yesterday there was a report that more than 1,500 had been marooned in lower Avoyelles and St. Landry parishes.

Rescue boats of every description were dispatched to the aid of the marooned residents and late last night it was reported that most of them had been taken from their perilous positions to places of safety. No loss of life is feared from the new flood territory as the rise of waters has been somewhat gradual.

The Red Cross and other relief agencies are planning today to open new relief headquarters through the district to care for the homeless from the new disaster area.

The waters are reported remaining stationary in the vicinity of Natchez but slowly rising in the southern Delta.

New Orleans, May 16.—A scant mile from where the flood torrent piles down into the great valley west of the Atchafalaya, coast guard boats today picked up more than 2,000 refugees huddled on the weakened levee.

According to Major John C. Gotwalt, in charge of rescue boats operating into the district, all refugees have now been removed to safety.

Naval aviators flying low over the "sugar bowl" lands said the flood tide was fifty miles below the levees along Big Bend. The parishes far below were being evacuated and no fier reported flood-trapped persons.

SEARCH FOR NEGRO
ATTACKING
WHITE WOMAN

Little Rock, Ark., May 16.—(UP)—Every available police officer and a large posse of men started search this afternoon for an unidentified negro who attacked a white woman in the residential section of Little Rock today.

Details of the attack were lacking at police headquarters. Gov. Martinieu was notified of the incident immediately. Coming on the heels of a recent lynching of a negro here as a result of an attack on a white woman, mob violence is feared.

Austin, Tex., May 16.—(UP)—Discussion of a resolution by Rep. Sam Gates of Runge, asking the governor to submit to the legislature the question of taxing every gallon of malt home brew manufactured and sold in Texas caused an uproar in the state legislature today.

Gates charged that millions of bottles of home brew are being made in Texas daily. His resolution would cause each bottle to be taxed 50 cents, the revenue derived to go to the school fund.

PRINCE OF WALES
JUMPS CLEAR

London, May 16.—(UP)—The Prince of Wales narrowly escaped injury when a horse he was mounting broke loose just as his highness was about to swing his leg over the saddle, it was learned today.

The mishap occurred Saturday at Melton Mowbray, and the prince was forced into a most undignified jump. The prince dropped the reins and jumped clear as the horse bolted through the lodge gates to a public highway, with the prince and several grooms in pursuit. The horse won the race, but stopped of his own accord a mile away.

The defendants are Mrs. Sarah Kerrick, widow of the slain actor, Miss Anita Davis, Miss Iris Burns and Henry Isabell, film extras, and Joe Hunt. All were at the alleged drinking party which ended when Kerrick was shot twice through the chest.

The five were named under a blanket indictment when the grand jury was unable to determine who did the shooting.

ALONG LINES
OF LA FOLLETTE
1924 MOVEMENTNOTHING SERIOUS IS BEING DONE
ABOUT IT YET, RE-
PORTEDPROSPECT THAT REPUBLICANS
MAY AGAIN BE LED BY COOLIDGE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 16.—Talk of a possible "third party" along the lines of the LaFollette independent movement of 1924, is being heard here, but nothing serious is being done about it yet.

The prospect that President Coolidge may again lead the republicans next year has caused some midwestern elements to discuss privately the prospect of organizing the farming west into a separate political entity.

The next session of congress in which the farm representatives have the all-important balance of power is expected to determine the question.

The chief problem now is that no one is available to lead this sort of flank maneuvers. Such political offshoots are usually built up around some popular leader like, in the two most recent cases, Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Sr. The outstanding leader of the independent group in congress is Senator George W. Norris, republican, Nebraska, a master parliamentarian and student of politics. But it is not known whether Norris would favor such a suggestion as he has always carried on his fights within the party.

Some few of the group look favorably upon the candidacy of former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, but there is no suggestion as yet that he might lead a bolt in case Mr. Coolidge is renominated.

All in all, the general situation at this time appears unfavorable to a G. O. P. split. The comparatively large popular vote polled by LaFollette in 1924 brought him the electoral votes of but one state and unless there are assurances of considerable additional strength, many independents believe the gesture would be futile.

In the coming session of the senate, however, the independents will have an opportunity to work out their destiny. With the line-up showing 47 republicans, 46 democrats and 1 farmer-laborite, (and two of the regular republicans yet to be seated) the farm group with its strength of at least ten votes will be able to join with the democrats on important legislation, and thus defeat the administration.

The result of this balance of power ultimately is expected to decide whether the movement will develop beyond mere talk.

PRESIDENA COOLIDGE

Washington, May 16.—(UP)—President Coolidge was ordered to bed this afternoon with a slight cold in his chest.

The president left the White House half an hour earlier than usual for lunch, feeling indisposed. Dr. James F. Coupal, his personal physician, diagnosed the order as a bronchial infection and advised him to spend the remainder of the day in bed.

Dr. Coupal said the president's condition was not serious.

Flood conditions are still serious in Manitoba where the Red, Assiniboine and Seine rivers are still out of bounds. Lorette, a little village east of Winnipeg, is covered with water. Several thousand acres of land are under water.

ALL NIGHT
GIN AND JAZZ
PARTIES DESCRIBED"JUNGLE," JAPANESE HOUSE-
BOY, TO TAKE STAND IN
KELLY TRIALLATTER CHARGED WITH MUR-
DER OF RAY RAYMOND,
STAGE ACTOR

By DAN CAMPBELL

Los Angeles, Calif., May 16.—All night "gin and jazz" parties in the apartment of Paul Kelly, screen juvenile, will be described by "Jungle," his Japanese houseboy, when he takes the witness stand in Kelly's trial for the murder of Ray Raymond, stage actor, according to the district attorney's office today.

"Jungle," who fled from the Kelly apartment after his master had been arrested in connection with the crime, has been held incommunicado by police. He has admitted officiating with a cocktail shaker at the prolonged liquor orgies and will reveal the intimate details of these parties from the stand, the state's attorney said.

The houseboy will be questioned about conversation between Kelly and the beautiful Dorothy Mackaye, Raymond's widow, over whom the two men are said to have fought, at a party in Kelly's apartment.

On the witness stand Friday, Miss Mackaye said the screen star had left the apartment while the party was being held and returned shortly afterward. She was unable to remember the conversation she had with him prior to his departure, she testified.

Miss Mackaye, who was on the witness stand when the case adjourned over the week-end, is expected to resume her testimony when the case is called at 2 P. M. today. She was on the verge of collapse at the close of the day but is reported to have recovered sufficiently to appear again today.

Defense attorneys indicated they would question her further about passionately phrased love letters and messages exchanged between her and Kelly while he was on the road.

New interest was injected into the case over the week-end when Ethel Lee, negro maid at the Raymond home and the only eye witness to the fight between Raymond and Kelly, is reported to have asked permission to return to the stand and "tell plenty."

She is said to have been incensed at the testimony of Miss Mackaye Friday, that the maid was drunk when the fight took place and that her testimony could be given very little credence.

Another surprising development came in the public announcement of Helen Wilkinson, companion of Miss Mackaye, that it was she and not the beautiful widow, who was in love with the screen star.

On the stand, Miss Mackaye testified that Miss Wilkinson was present at most of the "gin parties" given by Kelly.

The state is expected to spend the remainder of the week examining witnesses.

FLOOD WATERS
BEGIN TO SEEP
OVER FARMSGREAT WALL OF WATER POUR-
ING OVER FERTILE
LANDSRESCUE BOATS OF ALL DESCRIP-
TIONS AIDING THE MAROONED

By E. W. LEWIS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New Orleans, La., May 16.—Preparations were made today to care for 20,000 additional refugees from the south central parishes of Louisiana as the flood waters seeped across their lands.

Levees along the Bayou Des Glaisses are slowly crumbling and a great wall of water is pouring over the fertile lands. The residents, however, have had sufficient time to prepare for evacuation and most of them are reported to be moving from the territory.

Yesterday there was a report that more than 1,500 had been marooned in lower Avoyelles and St. Landry parishes.

Rescue boats of every description were dispatched to the aid of the marooned residents and late last night it was reported that most of them had been taken from their perilous positions to places of safety. No loss of life is feared from the new flood territory as the rise of waters has been somewhat gradual.

The Red Cross and other relief agencies are planning today to open new relief headquarters through the district to care for the homeless from the new disaster area.

The waters are reported remaining stationary in the vicinity of Natchez but slowly rising in the southern Delta.

New Orleans, May 16.—A scant mile from where the flood torrent piles down into the great valley west of the Atchafalaya, coast guard boats today picked up more than 2,000 refugees huddled on the weakened levee.

According to Major John C. Gotwalt, in charge of rescue boats operating into the district, all refugees have now been removed to safety.

Naval aviators flying low over the "sugar bowl" lands said the flood tide was fifty miles below the crevasses along Big Bend. The parishes far below were being evacuated and no further reported flood-trapped persons.

SEARCH FOR NEGRO

ATTACKING
WHITE WOMAN

Little Rock, Ark., May 16.—(UP)—Every available police officer and a large posse of men started search this afternoon for an unidentified negro who attacked a white woman in the residential section of Little Rock today.

Details of the attack were lacking at police headquarters. Gov. Martinieu was notified of the incident immediately. Coming on the heels of a recent lynching of a negro here as a result of an attack on a white woman, mob violence is feared.

SEEKS TAXING
PRODUCT OF HOME
MALT BREWERS

Austin, Tex., May 16.—(UP)—Discussion of a resolution by Rep. Sam Gates of Runge, asking the governor to submit to the legislature the question of taxing every gallon of malt home brew manufactured and sold in Texas caused an uproar in the state legislature today.

Gates charged that millions of bottles of home brew are being made in Texas daily. His resolution would cause each bottle to be taxed 50 cents, the revenue derived to go to the school fund.

PRINCE OF WALES
JUMPS CLEAR
OF HIS HORSE

London, May 16.—(UP)—The Prince of Wales narrowly escaped injury when a horse he was mounting broke loose just as his highness was about to swing his leg over the saddle, it was learned today.

The mishap occurred Saturday at Melton Mowbray, and the prince was forced into a most undignified jump. The prince dropped the reins and jumped clear as the horse bolted through the lodge gates to a public highway, with the prince and several grooms in pursuit. The horse won the race, but stopped of his own accord a mile away.

ANOTHER FILM
COLONY MURDER
TRIAL OPENSFIVE PERSONS TO GO ON TRIAL
CHARGED WITH MURDER OF TOM KERRICK"TWO GUN" COWBOY SHOT TO
HOLLYWOOD

Los Angeles, May 16.—(UP)—Another film colony murder trial was to open here today.

Five persons will go to trial charged with the murder of Tom Kerrick, "two-gun" film cowboy, shot to death during a party in his Hollywood apartment.

The defendants are Mrs. Sarah Kerrick, widow of the slain actor, Miss Anita Davis, Miss Iris Burns and Henry Isabell, film extras, and Joe Hunt. All were at the alleged drinking party which ended when Kerrick was shot twice through the chest.

The five were named under a blanket indictment when the grand jury was unable to determine who did the shooting.

LEAPS FROM CELL
TO DEATH BELOW

Rochester, N. Y., May 16.—(UP)—Fifty-three prisoners and two guards looked up from the pit of the county jail today in the third tier of cells and saw Salvatore Angelo, 46, a shoe-maker of this city, poised on the railing thirty feet up calling to them.

"Hey," yelled a guard, "come down."

"I'm coming," replied Angelo and he plunged down the railing to his death.

Wealthy Philanthropist,
Wm. Van Duzer Lawrence,
Dies in New York State

Bronxville, N. Y., May 16.—(UP)—William Van Duzer Lawrence, 85, wealthy philanthropist who made a fortune in the real estate and drug business, died today. One of Lawrence's philanthropies was a junior college in Bronxville for the teaching of liberal arts to women. He donated $1,000,000 to the institution, which is under construction.

GOVERNOR YOUNG PUTS 'TEETH' IN ALIEN LAND LAWS

Sacramento, Calif., May 16.—(UP)—Gov. Young today put the "teeth" in California's alien land laws when he signed the bill placing the burden of proving citizenship upon the alien and not upon the state. Heretofore when the state objected to the sale or lease of land to a Japanese or other alien the burden of proof was upon the state to prove that the defendant was not a citizen.

GASOLINE PRICE
CUTTING WAR AT COUNCIL BLUFFS

Council Bluffs, Ia., May 16.—Gasoline could be purchased as low as seven cents a gallon, exclusive of the two cents state tax, today as various independent dealers engaged in a price cutting war. The majority of the big companies continued selling at from 14 to 18 cents a gallon.

ALONG LINES
OF LA FOLLETTE
1924 MOVEMENTNOTHING SERIOUS IS BEING DONE
ABOUT IT YET, RE-
PORTEDPROSPECT THAT REPUBLICANS
MAY AGAIN BE LED BY COOLIDGE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 16.—Talk of a possible "third party" along the lines of the LaFollette independent movement of 1924, is being heard here, but nothing serious is being done about it yet.

The prospect that President Coolidge may again lead the republicans next year has caused some midwestern elements to discuss privately the prospect of organizing the farming west into a separate political entity.

The next session of congress in which the farm representatives have the all-important balance of power is expected to determine the question.

The chief problem now is that no one is available to lead this sort of flank maneuvers. Such political offshoots are usually built up around some popular leader like, in the two most recent cases, Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Sr. The outstanding leader of the independent group in congress is Senator George W. Norris, republican, Nebraska, a master parliamentarian and student of politics. But it is not known whether Norris would favor such a suggestion as he has always carried on his fights within the party.

Some few of the group look favorably upon the candidacy of former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, but there is no suggestion as yet that he might lead a bolt in case Mr. Coolidge is renominated.

All in all, the general situation at this time appears unfavorable to a G. O. P. split. The comparatively large popular vote polled by LaFollette in 1924 brought him the electoral votes of but one state and unless there are assurances of considerable additional strength, many independents believe the gesture would be futile.

In the coming session of the senate, however, the independents will have an opportunity to work out their destiny. With the line-up showing 47 republicans, 46 democrats and 1 farmer-laborite, (and two of the regular republicans yet to be seated) the farm group with its strength of at least ten votes will be able to join with the democrats on important legislation, and thus defeat the administration.

The result of this balance of power ultimately is expected to decide whether the movement will develop beyond mere talk.

PRESIDENA COOLIDGE
HAS SLIGHT COLD
IN HIS CHEST

Washington, May 16.—(UP)—President Coolidge was ordered to bed this afternoon with a slight cold in his chest.

The president left the White House half an hour earlier than usual for lunch, feeling indisposed. Dr. James F. Coupal, his personal physician, diagnosed the order as a bronchial infection and advised him to spend the remainder of the day in bed.

Dr. Coupal said the president's condition was not serious.

FLOOD WATERS IN CANADA CLAIM VICTIM

Winnipeg, Man., May 16.—(UP)—Flood water in Manitoba claimed another victim when Percy Taylor, aged 9, was drowned at Ninga, while attempting to swim the swollen creek there. This is the third drowning of the year.

Flood conditions are still serious in Manitoba where the Red, Assiniboine and Seine rivers are still out of bounds. Lorette, a little village east of Winnipeg, is covered with water. Several thousand acres of land are under water.

Charcoal Formation

Charcoal is the carbonaceous substance left from wood after its other elements have been driven off by heating, without allowing it to undergo combustion. This is done by burning the wood with only a limited supply of air, so that the other elements are consumed while the carbon remains almost undiminished.

Each baby born in a London apartment causes the rent to automatically raise, according to a plan worked out by the landlord. No children taken; above rent is for two persons only, or 2s. 6d. per week increase for every additional person or for every child born in the house. Two weeks' rent in advance as standing deposit in lieu of two weeks' notice either side." The rooms were two small ones just under the roof of the building.

Well-Known Constellation

The Southern cross is a brilliant group of stars in the southern hemisphere, first reckoned a constellation in 1679. The four principal stars form a sort of cross. Purely American Bird

The humming bird is found only on the American continent. It is closely allied to the swift, and there are several hundred species native from Labrador to Patagonia. The humming bird does not exactly move backward, but by the use of the pectoral muscles of the wing beats the air with a rapidity which enables the bird to remain stationary and to make such darting movements that apparently the flight may be backward.

10 MEN HURT AS MINE CARRIAGE
FALLS 80 FEET

Scranton, Pa., May 16.—(UP)—Ten men were injured early today in Dickson City, Pa., when a mine carriage in the shaft of the Johnson colliery dropped 80 feet to the bottom of the shaft. A cable had slipped off the drum in the engine room of the colliery.

Charcoal Formation

Charcoal is the carbonaceous substance left from wood after its other elements have been driven off by heating, without allowing it to undergo combustion. This is done by burning the wood with only a limited supply of air, so that the other elements are consumed while the carbon remains almost undiminished.

Great Financial Concern

One of America's large life insurance companies has assets greater than those of the Bank of England.

Each Baby Boosts Rent

Each baby born in a London apartment causes the rent to automatically raise, according to a plan worked out by the landlord. Under an agreement recently submitted to a prospective tenant of a two-room apartment, the terms were: "Rent 20s. per week or 17s. 6d. on repairing lease, tenant doing his own repairs on going in. No children taken; above rent is for two persons only, or 2s. 6d. per week increase for every additional person or for every child born in the house. Two weeks' rent in advance as standing deposit in lieu of two weeks' notice either side." The rooms were two small ones just under the roof of the building.

Well-Known Constellation

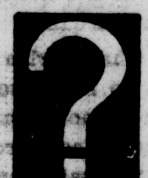

The Southern cross is a brilliant group of stars in the southern hemisphere, first reckoned a constellation in 1679. The four principal stars form a sort of cross. The upper and lower ones serve as a pointer to the South pole. It cannot be seen in the northern hemisphere except from very near the equator.

Baltimore's Distinction

The first umbrella factory in this country was established in Baltimore, Md., and is still in operation. It is said that the first umbrella to reach America was taken to Baltimore and was first carried in that city.

Purely American Bird

The humming bird is found only on the American continent. It is closely allied to the swift, and there are several hundred species native from Labrador to Patagonia. The humming bird does not exactly move backward, but by the use of the pectoral muscles of the wing beats the air with a rapidity which enables the bird to remain stationary and to make such darting movements that apparently the flight may be backward.

You might not believe it but that room was once dark and gloomy. None of us ever wanted to stay there long. Then we consulted Alderman-Maghan who explained it was the fault of the wall colorings, the floors and the woodwork. Nothing wrong with the room itself.

Association Accepts Brainerd Park Board's Offer

LUM PARK PROFFERED

Annual Picnic Date Now Set for Sunday, July 24

The Jericho Outing Association met Saturday evening, May 14, at Motley and accepted the Brainerd Park Board's offer for the use of Lum Park for the annual outing to be held Sunday, July 24.

Rushworth Encampment of Brainerd has been put in charge of the entertainment, members serving on the committee being Guy Bacon, Chas. Risk, Ira L. Tomlinson, of Brainerd and E. G. Emery of Iron- ton.

R. H. Hull of Motley is in charge of publicity for the outing at which from three to four thousand visitors from towns and villages of central Minnesota are expected to be present. The next meeting will be held June 25 at Brainerd.

Important Point

After a lucky day at the races four sportsmen adjourned after dinner to the flat of one of the quartet to play poker. Just before the cards were dealt the host said: "Oh, by the way boys, before we begin, it's just as well to be clear on this point. Are we playing fair, or all we know?"—Toronto Star.

After the Ball

A dashing phase of every artists ball is the home going. In the cold gray dawn of the morning after, in variably it rains, and there is not a taxi in sight. Makeup and grease paint are running, parts of rented costumes are missing, wigs are lost, lovers are separated and husbands and wives are not speaking. Oh, what bliss, to mingle in gay, mad Bohemia!—Vanity Fair.

Tom Mix and Zane Grey Prove Great Combination

The result of this unusual combination is a combination that can not be beat. "The Last Trail," Fox Films version of Mr. Grey's blood- tingling novel, starring the popular Western star, will open at the Lyceum Tuesday for an engagement of two days.

Fine Entertainment Found In "The Telephone Girl"

If you've ever wanted to wring the neck of the lady who gives you wrong numbers, or if you've ever felt a desire to punch the individual who rings off in the middle of interesting conversations, come on down to the Lyceum theatre tonight. "The Telephone Girl" as portrayed by Madge Bellamy in Paramount's latest Herbert Brenon production, proves to be a winsome little miss who is more to be praised than impaled.

SHOOT LOCAL FILM WEDNESDAY

Scenario Contest Will Close Tomorrow Evening, W. R. Hiller Announces

Those Taking Part to Gather at Park Theatre Wednesday at 1 P. M.

As the day draws near for the "shooting" of Brainerd's own film, local scenario writers are requested to turn in their copy immediately to the office of The Brainerd Daily Dispatch.

For the benefit of those who are completing their scenarios the closing day of entry of manuscripts has been extended to Tuesday. Those who will be unable to turn in their scenarios at the Dispatch office during the day are requested to bring them to the Lyceum theatre in the evening, W. R. Hiller, local manager of F. and R. theatres announced today.

The complete equipment for the taking of the film, the klieg lights, scenery, cameras will arrive in the city Wednesday morning. Three trucks are employed in transporting the equipment. The company is fulfilling their movie making engagement this week at St. Cloud.

W. R. Hiller requests that all those wishing to take leading parts in the film get in touch with him before Wednesday.

All local talent will report at the Park theatre Wednesday afternoon at 1 p. m. sharp for rehearsals and further instruction, at which time Director Smith of the Berkova Co. will select the cast. All local talent are urged to turn out and make the film a success. The production when completed and sub titles "shot" will be shown in a local theatre.

Street scenes will be taken Wednesday morning and afternoon. Interior scenes will be taken on the stage at the Park theatre Wednesday evening, a part to be taken at the first show and the balance at the second show.

The prize of ten dollars will be awarded for the best scenario.

The Brainerd Municipal band who will also be filmed in Brainerd's own movie will meet at the Iron Exchange building at 7 p. m. Wednesday and march in a body to the Park theatre where they will play.

Bonesetter to Rest

Dr. John D. "Bonesetter" Reese of Youngstown, Ohio, is one of the most noted figures in baseball, but strange as it may seem, he gets his rest while the season is on, and works hardest when the baseball season is not in progress. Here is Doctor Reese leaving for Honolulu on the steamer City of Los Angeles, for a brief vacation.

Egyptians Forbidden Wheat

An authority says that the reason the Egyptians did not use wheat, and therefore no traces could be found in their mummified stomachs, etc., was because their religion prohibited its use as a food. Although they knew of the grain, instead they used maize, which they kneaded with their feet into a bread known as spelt.

Chinese Catholic Bishops

On October 28, 1926, Pius XI, in the presence of his court and of the diplomatic body, consecrated as bishops six Chinese priests. They were Chao, Soow, Cheng, Choo, Hoo and Tsou. These were the first of that race to be elevated to the position of bishop.

The Victoria cricket team in Australia is the only team which has competition, recently totalling 1,107 against New South Wales.

Jack Blair, nineteen-year-old first baseman of West Palm Beach, Fla., has been signed for a trial with the Washington club.

The Denver club of the Western League has purchased Joe Murphy, catcher, from the Little Rock club of the Southern league.

Grant P. Ward, football scout for Ohio State university for a decade, has turned from the strategy of the grid-iron to that of politics.

Big game animals now on government reservations under supervision of the United States Department of Agriculture now number about 1,530.

Sylvester Johnson, pitcher for the Houston (Texas) league club, has been traded to Syracuse of the International league for Pitcher Kenneth Penner.

Are You An Economic Jaywalker?

In life, as along crowded thoroughfares, there are always people who prefer the short cuts and will not heed the traffic signals of Common Sense. They long for fine clothes, and expensive furnishings beyond the limit of Today's pay envelope, and Credit appears to be the short cut to the other side of the street. So they start gayly mortgaging Tomorrow's Dollars, and those of the Week After until they are hopelessly entangled in the traffic of every-day life.

Every purchase made in the J. C. Penney Company stores means a saving to the purchaser because of our universal policy of buying and selling only for cash. Of more importance, however, is the habit of thrift and economy formed. # Now... Science brings MAGIC to laundry-time

THIS message is for those women who live for something beside housework... yet who know it takes money to buy new clothes.

The amazing Meadows Bakelite impeller, when matched in trial against a metal impeller of former popularity, proved to those who witnessed the test under oath two vital facts:

First, that the Bakelite impeller not only washes clothes cleaner in less time, but with about one-fourth the wear!

Now it is possible not only to be through with the week's wash quicker than ever... but assured that clothes will be treated as gently as if you'd washed each piece by hand.

Results count! When you've done a week's wash with the Meadows and have smiled with satisfaction at the sheer, downy freshness

... the life of newness that remains in your linens, for instance... you may be tempted to wonder how it is done.

It is easy to answer your own questions.

Arrange with your dealer without delay to see the new Meadows. See what science has brought to the laundry.

You pay no more for these Meadows features... the biggest washing capacity on record... the magic Bakelite impeller... speedier results, accomplished with less wear on clothes.

FISHING EXPERIENCES

PIKE fishing opened Sunday and in company with a lot of other Brainerd people we hied to Charley Mahlum's office and got a license for the whole family. If you have quite a family of fishermen it's better to get the wholesale kind of a license than one just for yourself. Mr. Mahlum was instructed to write out one guaranteeing to catch fish, but evidently failed in this particular, for only one member of the family caught any fish.

In making out the card for the Lady of the House, her age had to be stated and that required some thinking.

Arriving at the lower end of Mille Lacs lake Sunday we passed scores and scores of boats clustering in regular flotilla formation at various fishing banks. So thick were the boats and the cars and the fishermen that it caused various fishing parties to hurry to their destination imbued with the same fear that assails the small boy at a Sunday school picnic who arrives late and wonders if the ice cream will hold out until he gets his share.

Our first experience at the Mille Lacs Indian Trading Post is a memorable one. Fishing was good for those who had fished long and well and parties came back from the fishing grounds, towed in long strings of boats by snorting and coughing launches, each bearing his limit of the catch allowed by law.

Fox Films had a photographer on hand and he took pictures of the boats of the fishing fleet as they rode at anchor near many points. He took a seat in the launch as it towed in one party of eleven boats and got fine pictures of this "train" as it angled about the lake on the way home.

As usually happens in some parties, just like beginners at card games, the kids and novices made great catches while some of the more experienced elders, backed by all kinds of science and fishermen's lore didn't do so well, but had to rest their laurels on the reputation of previous exploits. One kid in the party lost one of the minnow buckets with its precious minnows, but retrieved herself by catching two fish.

One of the oddest incidents recorded is that of a family accompanying another on a fishing trip. The youngster of 6 years of age wanted to fish, oh so badly, and had an old pole and reel and made casts on land. He raised a penny, got a live minnow and for a quarter of an hour fished off the dock and to the surprise of everybody, including the old timers who had never heard of such a thing, hooked a pike and landed it with the aid of his mother. And when Pa, who had fished all day in another lake, came home without a fish, the honors of that household went to the kiddie of 6 years of age, who had caught his first pike.

AMERICA'S BIG HEART

WITH many cities throughout the country, including St. Paul, reporting as over-subscribed their quotas of the Red Cross fund for the relief of flood victims in the South, America has again shown its readiness to answer the call of distress, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press in reviewing constructive work of this great organization.

"It is easy to sing the praises of the Red Cross in wartime, but in time of peace it is only when disaster strikes that its priceless service is impressed upon us anew. We often forget its true worth, as shown by the failure now and then of the organization to attain its membership roll call campaign."

"The Los Angeles Times, referring to the funds being raised for the southern flood sufferers, says:

"We ask no stronger proof of what the American Red Cross stands for in American life, in applied democracy, in the permanence of the Christ spirit, than the knowledge that every penny subscribed to relief work undertaken by this altruistic body of free workers will be spent wisely and well, as the ethics of business would see it spent, as the principles of democracy would wish it distributed, and as the spirit of the Redeemer would command its application for the love of humanity. The Red Cross is a drop of divine blood in the heart of America."

APPRECIATE CONVENTION PUBLICITY

CONVENTIONS entertained in Brainerd are always assured a wealth of publicity by the editorial staff of the Brainerd Dispatch. Assured publicity in Brainerd and outside is obtained and the officers of any convention appreciate this.

In a letter to the Brainerd Dispatch, dated May 12, at Duluth headquarters of the Supreme Council of the Modern Samaritans, Ruben Johnson, Supreme Secretary, writes as follows:

"In behalf of the Modern Samaritans, we want to express to you our appreciation for the splendid manner in which you have handled the publicity in connection with the State Convention of The Modern Samaritans that was held in Brainerd on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 10th and 11th.

"We were very gratified for the cooperation given us and I assure you that it will be long remembered. It was a most successful convention and our delegates all expressed themselves as being very much pleased with the hospitality shown by the Brainerd people."

MOULDERS OF GOODWILL

IN a recent address to the editors of the state, says the Bemidji Daily Pioneer, President Coffman of the University of Minnesota stressed the fact that the newspapermen are the moulders of goodwill between the city and country and champions of a better understanding between industry and agriculture.

That's the job that the vast majority of editors are trying to do, but there are always some cantankerous cusses who throw monkey wrenches into the machinery and stir up in a single political campaign more hard feeling and more disturbance than a hardworking newspaperman can quell in the next two years. It's an endless task but one that the average editor is going to keep pounding away at.

We haven't heard from "Bathhouse" John J. Coughlin for a long time and supposed he had passed out or checked in. This, however, is an erroneous supposition. John is still in the city council of Chicago and recently fathered an ordinance that women's dress stay "where they now are, at the knee." The public health committee did not take the resolution as one involving the health of the city and tabled John's resolution.

THIS flying business is getting to be like the first polar expeditions. The expedition starts out to find the pole, loses itself and the pole and a second expedition starts out to find the first one.

"Camera!" "Action!" Now you will hear the familiar words of David Smith, well known director of Berkova Productions. He is seen above with one of his cameramen. Both will come here for the making of the local production, which will be written and acted by local people, Wednesday night, May 18, at the Park Theatre.

A very pleasant evening was spent in games and other amusements.

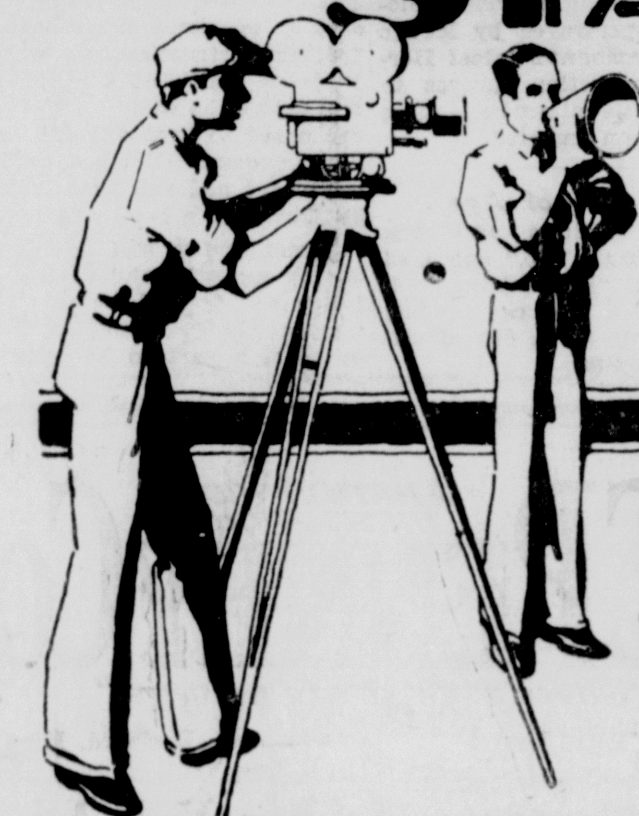

Saturday is the date of the field day event of the North Star Inter-

Scholastic League which is composed of students of the high schools of Aitkin, Brainerd and Little Falls. The Brainerd boys have been out for weeks and last night they appeared in the park in "full dress."

Why are there so many charming women today

Never before have there been so many charming women.

Wherever you go, you find them. Vivacious, happy, beautiful, delightfully dressed in the most exquisite taste.

Clear, pink-and-white complexion, luxuriant, well-kept hair, gleaming teeth, trim athletic carriage—these are almost universal characteristics of American women of today.

Why?

At first thought it may sound absurd, but one of the most powerful teachers has been advertising.

Advertising has helped to teach us all that the real basis of beauty is health and cleanliness. We are the greatest users of soap and water in the world.

Advertising has taught us how to care for our teeth, our hair, our feet, our hands and our complexions.

Advertising has taught us how to dress—how to choose colors and fabrics and becoming styles.

Advertising has taught us how to talk, how to entertain.

One reason why so many women are charming is because so many women are reading advertising. From advertising they are learning the secrets of great beauty specialists. They are getting health information of inestimable value. They are learning the secrets of becoming dress from the famous designers of Paris and New York.

Advertising is one of the biggest reasons why so many women are so charming

PIKE SEASON OPENED IN STATE SUNDAY

BRAINERD AREA ANGLERS FIND FISHING FAIR

MILLE LACS LAKE PROVED POPULAR RENDEZVOUS, OPEN WATERS CHOPPY DURING DAY

SEASON NOW OPEN FOR PIKE, PICKEREL, PERCH MUSKELLUNGE AND SAUGERS

Yesterday witnessed the exodus of thousands of Minnesota anglers to their favorite lake haunts in quest of the elusive pike, pickerel, perch, muskellunge, sandpike or sauger as the season for the catching of these fish opened.

As usual on the first day of the opening, Mille Lacs Lake proved the most popular but other lakes where pike were reported eager to take the hook were also well patronized.

Every boat for rent at Mille Lacs Lake was taken. The fishing was reported only fair, due to the choppy waters and the heavy wind. At 7 a. m. the lake was reported almost too rough to launch rowboats.

Hardware stores and sporting goods stores of Brainerd reported a larger sale of fishing tackle Saturday than any previous year at the opening of the season.

Undeterred by the chilly weather Saturday many city residents motored to the Brainerd lake region to get in their early fishing.

ADD 5 Col Sports 2 222 22

Up until Saturday night 500 resident fishing licenses had been issued at the office of the county auditor, it was announced today.

Three boats were reported to have tipped over in Mille Lacs lake but occupants of the boats were rescued by other fishermen.

Day's Prize Catch
The prize catch of the day goes to Ralph Lukens, 14 years old, who caught a nine pound walleyed pike in Gull Lake. The fish measured 28 inches. Other members of the party who were present at the time of the catch were Joseph Britton and Charles Miller.

COLD WEATHER WAS GENERAL

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(UP)—Although the pike and pickerel fishing season officially opened in Minnesota Sunday, the opening proper will take place next week-end.

Cold weather throughout the state caused a deficient amount of tourist business at the famous summer resorts and persons who insisted upon starting the season May 15 for the most part discovered that the fish had evidently heard of the ambitions of Izaak Waltonites. Various summer resort owners, although disappointed by the declination of thousands to brave the wind swept waters, admitted that "they just weren't biting."

Green Lake and the Chisago Lakes were expected to be crowded with enthusiastic anglers.

A. L. Jonason of the Park Island hotel, Center City, was heard to tell several anglers that "very few were caught on the North Chisago Lake."

"Nevertheless there are plenty of fish in these waters and someone is going to hit lady luck for a decided victory," Jonason predicted.

The larger lakes in northern Minnesota were visited by many, however, that kept along the shores and managed to take out some big ones, it was reported.

NEW PLAN TO ELIMINATE FAVORITISM

TO DO AWAY WITH SUCH CHARGES IN COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL RULINGS

GRIDIRON AUTHORITIES THINK PLAN MAY BE MADE PERMANENT IN EAST

By HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, May 16.—A new plan for eliminating charges of favoritism in the rulings of collegiate football officials will be in effect for ten leading eastern universities next fall, Gridiron authorities believed today the plan would be made permanent in the east and probably would spread to middlewestern and far western schools if it proves satisfactory.

One man will be given virtually absolute control over naming of officials for games of the ten schools, under an agreement adopted by coaches for Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Dartmouth, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Brown, Army and Navy.

The system, it was predicted, would result in choice of officials "free from any feeling of obligation or responsibility to either contesting team."

The agreement is a frank attempt

I. O. O. F. FACE NORTHEAST IN OPENING GAME

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE WILL GET UNDER WAY AT 6 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

MAYOR FRANK E. LITTLE SCHEDULED TO PITCH THE FIRST BALL

The Northeast team and the I. O. O. F. will swing into action at 6 o'clock tonight at the N. P. stadium in the opening game of the Brainerd City Baseball League which will formally start by the first ball thrown by Mayor Frank E. Little.

The 1926 champions, which all baseball followers in Brainerd know to be the Northeast team, will send into the contest as the battery Van Walk on the mound, with Schwedeman receiving.

Manager Fredstrom of the I. O. O. F. is in doubt as to his pitching choice. Bernard will do the catching. A fast opener is anticipated and a large crowd is expected, the day being ideal for the opening of the league.

The following rules have been drafted for use in the league.

Rule 1: Board of directors—Ed Orth, Art Drogseth, Oscar Erickson.

Rule 2: Seven innings games to be played, and in case of rain 4½ innings will be called a game played.

Rule 3: All games will be played at 6 P. M. and will be given until 8:15 to start play, and if not ready for play then a forfeit will be called.

Rule 4: Umpire will have the right to banish from game any one or more ball players that he may see fit to do so.

Rule 5: All tie games to be played off.

Rule 6: Only a limited player number on each team, that will call for 15 players on each club.

Rule 7: Player dropped from any team may not play with any other club, only by being reinstated by league managers.

Rule 8: Player must be a resident for a period of two weeks before he can partake in any one or more ball games. Managers to call meeting subject if needed.

Rule 9: All baseballs to be left at the Y. M. C. A. and each team will leave the same number of balls, and umpire get from the Y. for each game a total number of two balls for game, on such evenings games are to be played.

Rule 10: Spalding baseball to be used by the City League.

Umpire—Buffalo; scorer—Hagberg; treasurer—Flaata.

Series money to be split on 60-40 basis. League money to be split on even basis.

To eliminate whispered criticisms emanating from smaller universities, where it has been charged that because football officials receive larger fees from big schools than from small ones, they are under an obligation which sometimes seems to interfere with strict impartiality in rulings on the field.

The plan was hailed by football men as the greatest advance in eliminating criticism of the game since the custom of permitting officials or graduates of universities to referee games in which their schools participated was abandoned years ago.

No football alliance of any sort is likely to grow out of the meeting. In fact, the desire of the coaches is to spread the plan they evolved to as many other schools as possible.

William S. Langford, secretary of the football rules committee, and Dr. James A. Babbitt, chairman of the central board of football officials, were mentioned as possible candidates for the difficult post.

BROWNS HANDILY DEFEATED ATHLETICS 8 TO 6

BING MILLER ENJOYS A PERFECT DAY AT THE BAT

By UNITED PRESS

Yesterday's hero—Wally Schang, veteran catcher of the St. Louis Browns, who hit a home run into the left field bleachers with three mates on bases. The Browns handily defeated the Athletics 8-6.

Other high lights of the Browns-Athletics game included home runs by Cochrane and Collins of the Athletics and Bing Miller's perfect day at bat. Miller contributed with three singles and a double out of four times up.

Alphonse Thomas, young Chicago White Sox pitcher, lost an almost perfectly pitched game to the Boston Red Sox, 2-1. In the first inning, Boston scored two runs on three hits and Falk's error. From then on until the ninth, Thomas didn't allow a hit but the Sox were able to touch Velder for only one run despite nine hits.

Five Brooklyn pitchers were paraded before the Pittsburgh Pirates and each met a rain of base hits. The Pittsburghers won 9-6. The victory, coupled with the fact the St. Louis Cardinals were not playing, shoved the Pirates into second place in the national league.

None of the Cincinnati pitchers could hold the hard hitting Giants yesterday and New York won again, 6-3. Forty thousand watched the league leading Giants in action. Terry hit a home run with one man on.

Louisville, Ky.—Louisville won a twin bill from Indianapolis Sunday 6-2 and 6-4.

Kansas City—Two hard hitting contests were divided Sunday between the Kansas City Blues and Milwaukee. Kansas City took the opener 10 to 4 but lost the second 9-6.

St. Paul—Close pitching featured the victory St. Paul scored over Minneapolis.

PIKE SEASON OPENED IN STATE SUNDAY

BRAINERD AREA ANGLERS FIND FISHING FAIR

SEASON NOW OPEN FOR PIKE, PICKEREL, PERCH MUSKELLUNGE AND SAUGERS

Yesterday witnessed the exodus of thousands of Minnesota anglers to their favorite lake haunts in quest of the elusive pike, pickerel, perch, muskellunge, sandpike or sauger as the season for the catching of these fish opened.

As usual on the first day of the opening, Mille Lacs Lake proved the most popular but other lakes where pike were reported eager to take the hook were also well patronized.

Every boat for rent at Mille Lacs Lake was taken. The fishing was reported only fair, due to the choppy waters and the heavy wind. At 7 a. m. the lake was reported almost too rough to launch rowboats.

Hardware stores and sporting goods stores of Brainerd reported a larger sale of fishing tackle Saturday than any previous year at the opening of the season.

Undeterred by the chilly weather Saturday many city residents motored to the Brainerd lake region to get in their early fishing.

Up until Saturday night 500 resident fishing licenses had been issued at the office of the county auditor, it was announced today.

Three boats were reported to have tipped over in Mille Lacs lake but occupants of the boats were rescued by other fishermen.

Day's Prize Catch
The prize catch of the day goes to Ralph Lukens, 14 years old, who caught a nine pound walleyed pike in Gull Lake. The fish measured 28 inches. Other members of the party who were present at the time of the catch were Joseph Britton and Charles Miller.

COLD WEATHER WAS GENERAL

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(UP)—Although the pike and pickerel fishing season officially opened in Minnesota Sunday, the opening proper will take place next week-end.

Cold weather throughout the state caused a deficient amount of tourist business at the famous summer resorts and persons who insisted upon starting the season May 15 for the most part discovered that the fish had evidently heard of the ambitions of Izaak Waltonites. Various summer resort owners, although disappointed by the declination of thousands to brave the wind swept waters, admitted that "they just weren't biting."

Green Lake and the Chicago Lakes were expected to be crowded with enthusiastic anglers.

A. L. Jonason of the Park Island hotel, Center City, was heard to tell several anglers that "very few were caught on the North Chicago Lake."

"Nevertheless there are plenty of fish in these waters and someone is going to hit lady luck for a decided victory," Jonason predicted.

The larger lakes in northern Minnesota were visited by many, however, that kept along the shores and managed to take out some big ones, it was reported.

WILL IRWIN WRITES OF THE CRUMBLING LEVEES

SAW LAST BARRIERS FALL AND
LOUISIANA FARM LANDS
FLOODED

VIVIDLY DESCRIBES TRAGEDY OF
HOME-LOVING FARMERS OF DISTRICT

Will Irwin, noted author, saw from a coast guard cutter the crumbling of the last barrier between the swollen Bayou Des Glaises and the rich Louisiana farm lands below Big Bend. In the following story, written for the United Press, he vividly describes the tragedy that followed among the home-loving farmers of the district. Irwin went to the flood district to write the story of the flood for the United Press. It was Irwin who wrote a newspaper classic in 1906 when his story of the San Francisco fire and earthquake, "The City That Was," dramatized that disaster.

By WILL IRWIN
(Written for the United Press)
(Copyright, 1927, by United Press)

Alexandria, La., May 16. — The last of the Big Bend levees, protecting a good half of the rich Louisiana cane sugar belt from the angry, drunken Mississippi, as well as what is called the Big Bend levee proper, corresponding to an army's front line trench, have fallen.

The levee of Bayou Des Glaises, the second line, went first. There followed a number of smaller dykes. It was my tragic fortune to be passing in a coast guard launch when the last of them burst and crumbled. And what I saw in the course of that crowded afternoon was one little, typical segment of the greatest disaster, except war alone, which has ever descended on the United States.

Our coast guard crew — rushed boat and all, from New Jersey by special train — put off at Mansura, from what seemed to be a steep river bank until two weeks ago. As a matter of fact, this was a railroad cut at a temporary wharf, some 10 or 15 miles from the Mississippi, made by anchoring a barge. Coast guard cutters were landing refugees taken from flooded porches, from knolls, from house-tops. Half of them were coal black negro field-hands or cotton-farmers. The whites, transported by separate barges, were Acadian farming families, chattering among themselves in a thick, unfamiliar French dialect. One old negro, a cripple, was very ill. Two men supported him while his family walked about him.

A Red Cross doctor pushed his way through the crowd. The old man's head was bobbing and wobbling. He seemed nearly gone; too feeble to be moved, the doctor would have said, but the boatmen had taken him from a house-top, so there was no choice.

Two Acadian girls were crying as though their hearts would break — for the reason, I suppose, that their home was gone, which was reason enough.

An older brother, his hand on their shoulders, tried silently to comfort them. A younger brother, who had been trying to bite back the tears, suddenly broke down and joined in the family wailing.

Against the wharf bumped a clumsy flatboat, its deck surrounded by a high fence. It was loaded with horses and mules.

On the bank above, half of the automobiles in Mansura, mobilized for the emergency, were loading refugees and their scant baggage, and transporting them to the high land camp where the Red Cross forces were throwing up tents.

Before us as we shoved off lay a lake of orange-colored water, which stretched, whenever you could catch the distance, to the horizon. Into it sank the line of telegraph poles which emerged from the cut; they dipped lower and lower until only their tips appeared. These marked the submerged line of the Texas & Pacific railway.

As we gathered speed and shot southward, a submerged country seemed to pass us in procession. At first came pleasant little Cajan farm-houses, the water barely up to their front porches, so that here and there the holly-hocks of their gardens thrust pink spikes above the yellow flood. Further on stood a hamlet of 8 to 10 houses, and one tiny church on a knoll. The church stood bravely out of water; the lower houses lay submerged to their upper windows. Then the roof of a substantial farm-house without buildings, only the caves and parts of the upper windows showing; then, finally, only roofs; even at last, only shadows under the water. Below us lay some of the richest farms, acre for acre, in the United States; where thrifty Acadian families make comfortable livings and pile up competences on from forty to eighty acres.

Always in the distance rose groups of what seemed to be green islands, but which resolved themselves as we approached into the tops of cypress trees.

To east and north this lake stretched 10 or 15 miles to the Mississippi. To the west, and close to our course, ran what seemed like a low board wall.

We had run two or three miles when we advantaged ourselves of a dip in the telegraph line, ran our propeller clear of its wires and drew alongside.

We had the odd experience of looking down from the water on to a valley. This board fence was in fact the extension of a ten-foot levee and formed a second line of defense against the overflow of the great river to the east.

Down that valley raged and bubbled a yellow current. A mile to the north two low sand pits, with an open gap of a thousand yards between, marked the ruin of the Bayou Des Glaises levee, which had gone down only that morning. In its path lay Moreauville, a pleasant little town clustered around a cotton gin. The frail little negro huts of its outskirts seemed knocked out of line. One was already floating. The waters swerved and eddied against the corners of a row of five substantial houses.

The railway station, fringed with a line of stranded freight cars, stood on slightly higher ground. The waves were lapping on its platform.

A stray jersey cow, missed that morning in the rush to get the stock to the levees, was splashing and raised her muzzle in a faint omen of an agonized moo. Suddenly she plunged in, swam away behind the station. I did not see her emerge.

We ran along the levee for another two miles. Here and there a roof appeared, and always at these spots men were working like mad. For though the flood was rushing down the valley from the north, these houses stood on higher ground, at its edge. If our levee held, they might be safe.

Suddenly from a section where the roofs peeped thicker than usual, came frantic waving of arms and sheets. We slowed down to turn. A life-boat of the coast guard service, tagging us, suddenly shot out of line and put alongside the levee. When we had turned, frantic arms warned us away from a point two hundred yards beyond. We looked, and the line of boards was gone.

As the engine stopped, we heard a roar like Niagara. We leaped atop the dike and ran. The levee had broken under our eyes.

Across a gap, perhaps a hundred feet wide, poured the whole million-ton force of the mighty Mississippi. It bubbled in rapids as wild and turbulent as the Royal Gorge of the Arkansas, and with infinitely more terrible force.

A fine substantial house with turrets and bay windows had stood just opposite the break. It lay turned half around, crumpled up as you would crumple a match box in your hand.

The giant dike at Morganza is overflowing and cracking. If it goes the rest of the Acadian country goes, and there may be seven hundred thousand homeless in all.

Excepting war alone, the history of the United States shows no parallel to this for destruction, disturbance and misery.

RESIDENT ANGLING LICENSES ARE OUT

Minnesota Fishermen Must Obtain and Carry Permits With Them.

County auditors throughout the state have received from the Game and Fish department the new resident angling licenses and permits which are required of all resident anglers more than 21 years old.

They must be obtained from the auditor or the agents appointed by him in the county in which the applicant resides, and they must be carried on the person of the licensee at all times while fishing or while going to or returning from fishing waters.

The individual resident angling license fee is 50 cents, but the head of a family or household, by paying a fee of $1, may obtain additional permits for all the members of his family or household more than 21 years old without additional cost. No license or permit is required of resident anglers under 21 years old.

All licenses and permits are issued for the calendar year.

Contrary to a report which has been circulated widely, particularly outside of Minnesota, there is no increase in the non-resident angling license fee, which is $3.

Licensed non-residents are extended all the privileges of resident anglers while in this state, and they are permitted to ship or transport 24 pounds of undressed fish to their homes. Transportation coupons, attached to the license, enable the licensee to make three separate shipments of eight pounds each. It should be noted these coupons must be executed in ink.

Non-residents under 16 years old may take fish without procuring a license to do so provided the parent or guardian of such minor shall have obtained and has in his or her possession a non-resident angling license. Fish taken by such unlicensed minor, however, may not be shipped or transported out of the state.

There are no changes in the catch and size limit provisions relating to game fish, nor in open seasons except in relation to trout in Lake and Cook counties. There the trout season opens May 25 and closes September 1, whereas elsewhere in Minnesota the trout season opens April 15, and closes August 15.

The zone law relating to bass, rock bass, crappies and sunfish is still in force. In the Southern zone the season on these species opens May 29, and in the Northern zone June 21. The zone boundary crosses the state on a line approximately from Browns Valley through Sauk Rapids and St. Cloud to Princeton and Cambridge.

A Solid Base

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a business organized on a colossal scale, but its methods of operation are as simple, the foundation upon which it is built is as solid as a "one man" business in which the owner knows personally every worker and every customer.

The principles of successful business do not alter with the years or vary with differences in size. They are the same always for all organizations, large or small.

Fair-dealing—honesty of purpose—sincerity in word and deed—form the solid base of principles upon which all successful business must be built.

The public insists that this shall be true. The public is made up of a great mass of men and women who are quick to detect fraud and deceit. A few people may be fooled—but never the great mass of people who make or break a business.

For it is the public that decides the success of any business. People cannot be forced to buy things against their will. They buy the products of that organization which they know they can depend upon to give them the highest quality at the lowest possible price. They insist on fair dealing, honesty, sincerity.

The ever-increasing demand of the people of the Middle West for Standard Oil Company (Indiana) products—which has made necessary its steady growth—has shown their appreciation of these principles.

The people of the Middle West have learned that they can depend on the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). They know that its products are reliable—always the same. They know that they will meet fairness and honesty in any dealings they may have with the Company.

The very name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has stood for faithful service and fidelity to right principles for so many years that when the Company introduces a new product to the public, thousands of people are instantly ready to try it, confident that it will maintain the reputation of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Such a reputation for integrity is built up in only one way, whether the smallest store in the smallest village, or a large organization like the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) serving ten states is concerned—by the simple system of fair dealing, honesty of purpose, sincerity in word and deed.

In the smallest store in the smallest village one man practices these principles, whereas in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) shareholders, directors, employees practice them unflinchingly—generation after generation. Men come and go, but the name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and the principles for which it stands endure.

WILL IRWIN WRITES OF THE CRUMBLING LEVEES

SAW LAST BARRIERS FALL AND
LOUISIANA FARM LANDS

VIVIDLY DESCRIBES TRAGEDY OF
DISTRICT

Will Irwin, noted author, saw from a coast guard cutter the crumbling of the last barrier between the swollen Bayou Des Glaises and the rich Louisiana farm lands below Big Bend. In the following story, written for the United Press, he vividly describes the tragedy that followed among the home-loving farmers of the district. Irwin went to the flood district to write the story of the flood for the United Press. It was Irwin who wrote a newspaper classic in 1906 when his story of the San Francisco fire and earthquake, "The City That Was," dramatized that disaster.

By WILL IRWIN
(Written for the United Press)
(Copyright, 1927, by United Press)

Alexandria, La., May 16. — The last of the Big Bend levees, protecting a good half of the rich Louisiana cane sugar belt from the angry, drunken Mississippi, as well as what is called the Big Bend levee proper, corresponding to an army's front line trench, have fallen.

The levee of Bayou Des Glaises, the second line, went first. There followed a number of smaller dykes.

It was my tragic fortune to be passing in a coast guard launch when the last of them burst and crumbled. And what I saw in the course of that crowded afternoon was one little, typical segment of the greatest disaster, except war alone, which has ever descended on the United States.

HELD BY EPWORTH LEAGUE
Group of League Members Made the Trip to Hill City Friday
Evening

A group of members of the Epworth League of the Methodist church journeyed to Hill City last Friday evening to take part in an Epworth League rally. Among those making the trip were the Misses Augusta and Lydia Welsh, Dorothy and Lois Hanson, Alvilda Huseby, Hazel Burns, Amy Marken, Mrs. Fred Minske, Mrs. George Senn, Chaucer Chang and Rev. and Mrs. Morris Evers.

Miss Lydia Welsh, with her story of David and Goliath, told in a language so simple and a manner so pleasing that even a child could understand it, won the honor of second place in the sub-district Bible story telling contest. First place was given to a young lady from Crosby. Both will compete in the finals at Arrowhead Institute on Little Hanging Horn Lake near Barnum in July.

Chaucer Chang gave a very thoughtful contrast of the youth of China with the youth of America and their relation to world problems.

The delegation encountered many experiences quite novel to them. Six times, all dis-embarked to help lift stalling cars from almost fathomless mud-holes, finally leaving two cars in a farmer's front yard beside a mud hole which a hundred men from Hill City had failed to make passable two days before.

The hospitality of the Hill City people in keeping the delegation over night so the return trip could be made in day light was most gracious as was their preparation for the reception of the various delegations who managed to get through. According to the returned delegates there are two problems before the country, "first, control of the Mississippi and second, abolish the 'sloughs of despond' on route 35 in Aitkin county."

College Students to Travel Abroad
In a group of college students who will spend the summer travelling abroad will be Miss Ruth Beise, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Beise and Miss Mary Forsell, Miss Grace Gardner, Miss Rachel L. Hanna, of Minneapolis; Miss Anna Jean Bacon of St. Paul, Miss Helen Rhode, Green Bay, Wis., Misses Helen Brown and Marie Young of St. Cloud. Mrs. W. L. Carpenter and daughters the Misses Helen and Mary Carpenter will also be in the party. Mrs. P. J. Evans of Minneapolis will chaperon the group. They will sail June 21 from New York on the Frederick VIII for Oslo, Norway and after touring Sweden and Norway, will go to Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France, England. From England they will sail for Montreal.

RIVERTON BOY GAINS HONORS

Riverton, Minn., May 16.—Julian Johnson, a senior in the Riverton high school, has been awarded a Caleb Dorr freshman scholarship of $100 in the Minnesota College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics. Announcement of his selection among others was recently made by Dean E. M. Freeman of the college at the annual recognition assembly at University Farm.

This is the third year of the awards for freshmen scholarships from high schools under the bequest of Caleb Dorr, a pioneer lumberman of Minneapolis. Every high school in the state was invited to send nominations of graduating seniors who have excelled in scholarship, public service and boys' and girls' club work, and who have to their credit some distinct achievement in self support. From these nominations 10 high school seniors are awarded scholarships each year.

The College of Agriculture, Forestry and Home Economics of the University of Minnesota admits freshmen students at the opening of the fall, winter and spring quarters. Candidates must either pass examinations or present certificates showing graduation in some approved school. The fall quarter classes of the 1927-28 university year will begin at 8:15 on Monday, September 26.

THE STORY SO FAR
Amaryllis Minton, a lonely little girl, runs away from home, to find a friend. She finds John Guido, and never forgets him. Although things change after her escape, and she is much happier, John Guido lingers in her mind, and so she leaves for Italy, where the Forresters are staying. There she finds that she is still loved, and at last manages to think of a plan that will let him know that she is waiting, too.

All that afternoon Amaryllis wrote notes. She wrote them by the dozen, she filled the waste basket with fragments of them and when night came she was dressed more carefully than she ever had been dressed before, dressed with exquisite precision and taste to listen to his music. They found a secluded place in the great building and with Amaryllis clinging tight to her father's hands, they listened breathlessly. They watched through glasses with straining eyes. They listened to the salvos of applause when, slender and beautiful, gracefully and with exquisite skill, John Guido stood before a great audience and played great music.

Then a thing happened that was so surprising that Paul Minton took Amaryllis in his arms and held her tight without the slightest regard as to whether anybody saw what he was doing. Nobody was looking at them, anyway. Everyone was looking at the beautiful youth playing, playing exquisite music. The program said that it was his first public appearance. When he had played the great things and the fine things, and when he had answered encore after encore, at the very last he stood out and he waited for a moment as if he could not quite de-

Guido from Rome to Berlin, from Berlin to Madrid, from Madrid to Paris, from Paris to London, and after London surely home would be next. It was at this point that the telephone rang. Because she was near it, Amaryllis answered it. The call was from the bank that handled Mr. Forrester's money and the leasing of his property. With one particular man who handled this particular business, Amaryllis had made friends. She had left instructions that he should keep her posted as to when the Forresters were coming so that the supposititious tenants might have time to move from the house.

When she answered the telephone, the voice of this particular man called for her and then went on to say that they had just received a letter informing them that on the twentieth of May the Forresters would be sailing. They wanted to go straight to their home and they would be glad if the tenants could have vacated it before that time.

Amaryllis tried to be quite businesslike. She said very primly that the tenants would have left the house and that the keys would have been turned in at the bank. They might cable Mr. Forrester to that effect.

Then she hung up the receiver and stood still. Possibly in ten days more John Guido would be back to the garden of magic with the bed of striped grass, and the mystery of the meadow and the song of the brook that grew so impetuous that men said it roared. Amaryllis came so near feeling as if she were going to fly that she lifted her feet and inspected them very carefully to see whether they might not have developed wings like those of Mercury in the mythology book.

That night, when Paul Minton came home, Amaryllis was waiting for him halfway down the drive. She made a flying leap that landed cide. Then he lifted his violin. He lifted his bow. He shook back his hair and he laughed until the gleam of his white teeth could be seen across the great building, and lightly like thistle-down and fairy footsteps, lightly like Jack Frost coming in the night to paint the windows with pictures, Tap-tap, tap, tap—Tap, tap, tap, the bow fell and John Guido began to play "Amaryllis."

That was when Amaryllis' old Dad had to hold her tight. Afterward he sent the usher up the aisle with a great bunch of red Amaryllis and down in the heart of it there was a little note that said: "I have heard you play my music. Now I must go back and leave you to finish your work, but when you come to the little white house that's waiting for you, as I promised, I will come back to you. There is nothing in all the world so beautiful as your music. When you cannot make it any more beautiful, then come home, and you will find me waiting. Amaryllis."

So Amaryllis went home and for several more years she went straight ahead studying her own lessons, keeping her father's house, writing to Peter half a month, half a sisterly letters, being the very light of her father's eyes. During those two years all her spare time she lived in the little house. Those were years when Amaryllis really grew. She was getting to be a woman now, very close to eighteen. She had grown to woman's mental stature, and she had grown to beauty so much greater than any beauty that could be seen in girls around her that she shone out as one star brighter than all the rest shine in the heavens because she belonged to John Guido. She had kept herself for him alone.

The world of the big island is never quite so lovely as it is in May, when all the old pear trees and peach trees and apple trees are in bloom; when the grass is brilliantly green and homecoming birds are shouting the ecstasy of their mating songs.

It was on a morning like this in the big house where Amaryllis reigned that she answered the telephone. She was looking over her domain and feeling highly comfortable and pleased and happy.

She was wondering, as she wondered nearly every hour of every day of her life, what John Forrester and John Guido, his son, were going to think when they stepped into their home and found it changed.

She had been following John her on the running board of his car and opened her lips. Before she had time to say a word, her father had closed them with a kiss and what he said was: "Cable today. Peter will be here in about ten days."

Then in excitement so tense that neither of them was very particularly articulate, they discovered that the same boat was going to bring Peter home and John Guido and Mr. Forrester. There was a meager possibility that at some time in the length of a voyage on that boat they might have run across one another and might become acquainted. Amaryllis thought about it all night when she should have been sleeping. The next day Peter had a cable that read: "Delighted. Same boat an artist, John Forrester; his son, a violinist. Want you to be good friends. Get acquainted with younger Forrester, but do not mention me. Secret. Tell you later."

Then followed ten days that were the busiest of all Amaryllis' life. Paul Minton sympathized with her and helped her. Peter's room was made especially fine and some new pieces of furniture were put in it. Peter's horse was groomed until a shadow could be seen on its shining flanks, and Peter's dogs were taken care of a little more particularly than they had been ten days before.

Paul Minton went with Amaryllis over to the little white house and he was shocked at the expenditure he had permitted and entranced with the results. There was no question but that Amaryllis had the home-making instinct. He had to admit that he had not seen anything anywhere that seemed so quiet, so serenely still and so entrancingly sweet. Perhaps the highest tribute he paid her work was when he put his arms around Amaryllis and said: "Amaryllis, because that was his own private and personal pet name for her—" "Amaryllis, I am all sort of breathless here. I feel as if I should walk on tiptoe and whisper."

Amaryllis threw her arms around his neck and hugged him tight and her eyes were wet.

Close to his ear she said it low: "You just better do it, Dad! You just better whisper, because Love is asleep here and when it wakes up, oh, boy! there is going to be music and song and laughter, and there are going to be little people and the brightest sunshine that this old island ever knew when Love wakes up in this little white house!"

SUMMER BATTLE FOR THE OLD TURF CHAMPIONSHIP

PREAKNESS AND THE KENTUCKY DERBY ARE NOW OUT OF THE WAY

H. P. WHITNEY'S WHISKERY IS THE OUTSTANDING THOROUGHBREED

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Louisville, Ky., May 16.—With the Preakness and Kentucky Derby out of the way, the long summer battle for the three-year-old turf championship of 1927 was on today.

Out of the flying dirt clouds and pounding of hoofs in the splendid derby run here Saturday, Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskery emerged as the outstanding thoroughbred of America. He proved the greatness of the Broomstick strain, to which he traces his ancestry, and established himself as possessing the essential qualities of speed, gameness and staying ability.

But Whiskery is not yet the undisputed champion. By the time the rich Belmont Stakes is run, and the other big stakes to be contested in New York and Maryland before fall, Whiskery must fight and fight hard to withstand the challenge of perhaps half a dozen good three-year-olds that this season has developed.

He has yet to meet the Ranocosa Stable's Sweepster and the Seagram Stable's Sir Harry, neither of whom contested in the derby. J. E. Widener's Osmond was beaten only a head in the derby and apparently is still capable of giving the Whitney speedster a tough battle.

J. W. Parrish's Rolled Stocking ran a terrible derby, but he of all the starters had a legitimate alibi. He was badly cut when Buddy Bauer jumped on him at the start and when he is back in shape, may justify the confidence of those who backed his odds down to less than 5 to 1 in the derby. J. N. Camden's Hydromel, too, which ran a splendid race to be fourth, had been out of condition lately and the Belmont may tell a different story.

The way of a derby winner is hard. A horse brought to the top of form so early in the season to win a race that always is a severe struggle has too much taken out of him to stay fit all summer, as a rule. Colts such as Zev are notable exceptions, and they have been few.

Whiskery has had an exceptionally hard campaign. He won the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre De Grace, ran third in the Preakness at Pimlico and won the derby, all within about two weeks. If Jimmy Rowe and Fred Hopkins can keep him in shape all summer to trample down the kind of competition he must meet, Whiskery will be one of the greatest horses of all time.

There is nothing to detract from the glory that the Whisk Broom II-Prudery colt won at the Downs Saturday. His spectacular race and glorious stretch finish brought him immortal glory and made the 1927 derby one that will long be remembered.

It was a truly run race and Whiskery proved himself a better racer than Osmond. The latter, with Sande up, ran to his utmost ability and failed by a head. Both showed a remarkable performance in finishing so strongly after the hot early pace set by E. B. McLean's Jock, especially Osmond, which chased Jock while Linus McAtee held Whiskery back.

Jock, incidentally, did himself proud by staying in at the finish and probably will be a great horse this year at shorter distances than a mile and a quarter.

The only real flops of the race were W. M. Jefford's Scapa Flow and the Sage Stable's Rip Rap. The Maui O' War colt now looks almost hopeless as anything but a sprinter. It may be that Rip Rap needs races and will do better by fall. Most of the others ran good races.

The derby was witnessed by the greatest crowd in its history, estimated at from 75,000 to 100,000. The crowd bet nearly $2,000,000 in the mutuels on all races but contrary to all expectations, the "take" on the derby was less than last year. It had been expected to total nearly a million dollars, but actually was $676,483.

THE STORY SO FAR

Amaryllis Minton, a lonely little girl, runs away from home, to find a friend. She finds John Guido, and never forgets him. Although things change after her escape, and she is much happier, John Guido lingers in her mind, and so she leaves for Italy, where the Forresters are staying. There she finds that she is still loved, and at last manages to think of a plan that will let him know that she is waiting, too.

All that afternoon Amaryllis wrote notes. She wrote them by the dozen. She filled the waste basket with fragments of them and when night came she was dressed more carefully than she ever had been dressed before, dressed with exquisite precision and taste to listen to his music. They found a secluded place in the great building and with Amaryllis clinging tight to her father's hands, they listened breathlessly. They watched through glasses with straining eyes. They listened to the salvos of applause when, slender and beautiful, gracefully and with exquisite skill, John Guido stood before a great audience and played great music.

Then a thing happened that was so surprising that Paul Minton took Amaryllis in his arms and held her tight without the slightest regard as to whether anybody saw what he was doing. Nobody was looking at them, anyway. Everyone was looking at the beautiful youth playing, playing exquisite music. The program said that it was his first public appearance. When he had played the great things and the fine things, and when he had answered encore after encore, at the very last he stood out and he waited for a moment as if he could not quite de-

Guido from Rome to Berlin, from Berlin to Madrid, from Madrid to Paris, from Paris to London, and after London surely home would be next. It was at this point that the telephone rang. Because she was near it, Amaryllis answered it. The call was from the bank that handled Mr. Forrester's money and the leasing of his property. With one particular man who handled this particular business, Amaryllis had made friends. She had left instructions that he should keep her posted as to when the Forresters were coming so that the supposititious tenants might have time to move from the house.

When she answered the telephone, the voice of this particular man called for her and then went on to say that they had just received a letter informing them that on the twentieth of May the Forresters would be sailing. They wanted to go straight to their home and they would be glad if the tenants could have vacated it before that time.

Amaryllis tried to be quite businesslike. She said very primly that the tenants would have left the house and that the keys would have been turned in at the bank. They might call Mr. Forrester to that effect.

Then she hung up the receiver and stood still. Possibly in ten days more John Guido would be back to the garden of magic with the bed of striped grass, and the mystery of the meadow and the song of the brook that grew so impetuous that men said it roared. Amaryllis came so near feeling as if she were going to fly that she lifted her feet and inspected them very carefully to see whether they might not have developed wings like those of Mercury in the mythology book.

That night, when Paul Minton came home, Amaryllis was waiting for him half way down the drive. She made a flying leap that landed

John Guido began to play "Amaryllis."

Then he lifted his violin. He lifted his bow. He shook back his hair and he laughed until the gleam of his white teeth could be seen across the great building, and lightly like thistle-down and fairy footsteps, lightly like Jack Frost coming in the night to paint the windows with pictures, Tap-tap, tap, tap—Tap, tap, tap, the bow fell and John Guido began to play "Amaryllis."

That was when Amaryllis' old Dad had to hold her tight. Afterward he sent the usher up the aisle with a great bunch of red Amaryllis and down in the heart of it there was a little note that said: "I have heard you play my music. Now I must go back and leave you to finish your work, but when you come to the little white house that's waiting for you, as I promised, I will come back to you. There is nothing in all the world so beautiful as your music. When you cannot make it any more beautiful, then come home, and you will find me waiting. Amaryllis."

So Amaryllis went home and for several more years she went straight ahead studying her own lessons, keeping her father's house, writing to Peter half motherly, half sisterly letters, being the very light of her father's eyes. During those two years all her spare time she lived in the little house. Those were years when Amaryllis really grew. She was getting to be a woman now, very close to eighteen. She had grown to woman's size. She had grown to woman's mental stature, and she had grown to beauty so much greater than any beauty that could be seen in girls around her that she shone out as one star brighter than all the rest shine in the heavens because she belonged to John Guido. She had kept herself for him alone.

The world of a big island is never quite so lovely as it is in May, when all the old pear trees and peach trees and apple trees are in bloom; when the grass is brilliantly green and homecoming birds are shouting the ecstasy of their mating songs.

It was on a morning like this in the big house where Amaryllis reigned that she answered the telephone. She was looking over her domain and feeling highly comfortable and pleased and happy. She was wondering, as she wondered nearly every hour of every day of her life, what John Forrester and John Guido, who were going to think when they stepped into their home and found it changed.

She had been following John

SUMMER BATTLE FOR THE OLD TURF CHAMPIONSHIP

PREAKNESS AND THE KENTUCKY DERBY ARE NOW OUT OF THE WAY

H. P. WHITNEY'S WHISKERY IS THE OUTSTANDING THOROUGHBRED

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Louisville, Ky., May 16. — With the Preakness and Kentucky Derby out of the way, the long summer battle for the three-year-old turf championship of 1927 was on today. Out of the flying dirt clouds and pounding of hoofs in the splendid derby run here Saturday, Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskery emerged as the outstanding thoroughbred of America. He proved the greatness of the Broomstick strain, to which he traces his ancestry, and established himself as possessing the essential qualities of speed, gameness and staying ability.

But Whiskery is not yet the undisputed champion. By the time the rich Belmont Stakes is run, and the other big stakes to be contested in New York and Maryland before fall, Whiskery must fight and fight hard to withstand the challenge of perhaps half a dozen good three-year-olds that this season has developed.

He has yet to meet the Rancocas Stable's Sweepster and the Seagram Stable's Sir Harry, neither of whom contested in the derby. J. E. Widener's Osmond was beaten only a head in the derby and apparently is still capable of giving the Whitney speedster a tough battle.

J. W. Parrish's Rolled Stocking ran a terrible derby, but he of all the starters had a legitimate alibi. He was badly cut when Buddy Bauer jumped on him at the start and when he is back in shape, may justify the confidence of those who backed his odds down to less than 5 to 1 in the derby. J. N. Camden's Hydromel, too, which ran a splendid race to be fourth, had been out of condition lately and the Belmont may tell a different story.

The way of a derby winner is hard. A horse brought to the top of form so early in the season to win a race that always is a severe struggle has too much taken out of him to stay fit all summer, as a rule. Colts such as Zev are notable exceptions, and they have been few.

Whiskery has had an exceptionally hard campaign. He won the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre De Grace, ran third in the Preakness at Pimlico and won the derby, all within about two weeks. If Jimmy Rowe and Fred Hopkins can keep him in shape all summer to trample down the kind of competition he must meet, Whiskery will be one of the greatest horses of all time.

There is nothing to detract from the glory that the Whisk Broom II-Prudery colt won at the Downs Saturday. His spectacular race and glorious stretch finish brought him immortal glory and made the 1927 derby one that will long be remembered.

It was a truly run race and Whiskery proved himself a better racer than Osmond. The latter, with Sando, ran to his utmost ability and, felled by a head. Both showed a remarkable performance in finishing so strongly after the hot early pace set by E. B. McLean's Jock, especially Osmond, which chased Jock while Linus McAtee held Whiskery back.

Jock, incidentally, did himself proud by staying in at the finish and probably will be a great horse this year at shorter distances than a mile and a quarter.

The only real flops of the race were W. M. Jefford's Scapa Flow and the Sage Stable's Rip Rap. The latter, a War colt now looks almost hopeless as anything but a sprinter. It may be that Rip Rap needs races and will do better by fall. Most of the others ran good races.

The derby was witnessed by the greatest crowd in its history, estimated at from 75,000 to 100,000. The crowd bet nearly $2,000,000 in the mutuels on all races but contrary to all expectations, the "take" on the derby was less than last year. It had been expected to total nearly a million dollars, but actually was $676,483.
